Piping The Town For Gas

One of the officials of the High River Gas Co. canvassed the householders of the town today for applications for gas connection. The flow of gas is now sufficient for all purposes, and we are informed that pipe lines will be installed at once. The statement is made that houses and offices will be supplied with gas early next year.

At the gas well, drilling operations are being pushed with vigor and the roaring of the gas may be heard forcing its way through the water in the hole. A match was applied this evening, and the flames were soon extinguished. That the flow of gas is increasing is now beyond question.—High River Times

In our last issue we made an announcement to the effect that the annual stockholders meeting of the Vulcan Co-operative society of Tuesday, December 16th, would be followed by a Social in the evening. Owing to the pressure of immediate business, however, we have been asked to state that although the meeting will be held, the social gathering will be postponed until some date early in the New Year.

The veteran Liberal leader, Sir Wilfred Laurier, celebrated his seventy-second birthday on Thursday last. He was the recipient of congratulations from King George, the Duke of Connaught, Premier Asquith, Hon. Lloyd George, Lord Strathcona, Earl Grey and many other prominent men in Great Britain, besides many from New Zealand. Men of both parties in this country expressed their good wishes.

Once more The Advocate would strongly urge its readers to keep clear of many of the utterly worthless oil companies that are being floated in Calgary at present.

One hundred and fifty thousand East Indian laborers, engaged in Natal, have laid down their tools and struck for higher wages. As a result the sugar industry is paralyzed.

Six million pounds of sugar have been produced, this year, in Raymond, Alberta.

Wage cases seem to be rather plentiful these days, and for some time now this kind of dispute has engaged much of the attention of our worthy magistrate.

After having been held up for lumber for a week, the Council were on Thursday last able to get the sidewalk alterations proceeded with, and the work, when finished, will make a vast improvement to the town.

At the meeting of the Ladies' Aid last week at the house of Mrs. Mitchell, attention was devoted to preparations for the coming sale of work which is to be held in the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, Dec. 2. A notice of the sale of work appears elsewhere in this issue.

The opening dance which was held in Mr. C. B. Shimp's new hall on Tuesday of last week was of a very satisfactory nature. About sixty couples were present, and the Carmangay orchestra supplied the music, which was thoroughly appreciated by the dancers. Supper was afterwards served.

The sale of stock, farm implements and household goods of Mr. W. J. Brown was well attended on Thursday last. The bidding was brisk, and all-round good prices were reached. Cash was paid for the purchases. Mr. Clarence Davis of Champion was the auctioneer, and Mr. A. Mitchell, Vulcan, acted as clerk.

On Thursday last at the barracks, a gentleman of doubtful appearance was under the painful necessity of meeting the magistrate, and answering to the charge of drunk and disorderly. When asked for his name the accused replied that his Christian name was William, but he could not recall the surname under which he last appeared before a magistrate. It eventually came to light that his name was William Barringer, and as such he was ordered to pay $5 and costs or spend one month at Macleod. He chose the latter, and departed thither next morning.

The Guild

In his paper on 'Christian Manliness,' which Mr. P. W. L. Clarke read to the Young People's Guild on Thursday evening last, he gave what is one of the best that the guild have so far had. The subject itself is suggestive of a wide field which may be searched in many directions. The speaker had gone over the ground well, and his illuminating address was eloquent of the care and thought which he had given to the subject. The explanation of the title was succinctly worded in the sentence: 'Christian manliness is courage in the discharge of our duty to God,' and on an argument conducted from that basis, it was shown that courage of itself was not of necessity of a christian-like character. For instance, a house-breaker or a dweller in the slums might display courage by following his avocation as a purloiner of other people's property or beating his wife—either case required some courage; but as long as it was not laid out for the benefit of others—and not actuated by self-denial, it was of no service. The really courageous man is he who can pursue the right in face of opposition, 'if manliness is the courage of duty, its quality will be determined by the standard of duty which is adopted.' The truest and highest type of Christian manliness was shown in Christ, who maintained the standard of perfection throughout his career, from the time when he lived at home, no doubt among those who were unbelievers, to his last journey when surrounded by his enemies. He was the sublime pattern on which it was the duty of all to model themselves. For Christian manliness, laying in our duty to God, the only way to attain that was to accept the model. In conclusion, Mr. Clarke said that the Christian must not shun the world, but exercising a spirit of charity, seek to extract the good from the bad, having ever before him the example of Christ, and, like him, pausing even in the busiest moments and in the most exciting scenes to assure himself that he is acting up to the Christian standard as far as in him lies. In this way he preserves and exercises the courage of duty to God which is Christian manliness.

Council Meeting

The Council met on Monday, November 17th, all the councillors being present.

It was decided to acquire Mr. Child's shack at a cost of $100 for the purpose of a pest house.

The secretary was again instructed to write to the proprietor of the hotel, drawing his attention to the state of the sewer west of the town. Notwithstanding the fact that it had been plowed, complaints as to the smell were being received, further improvements being necessary.

A lengthy discussion ensued in regard to the manner in which the suspending of the Council Ordinance had been taken advantage of. It was finally settled that hogs and horses were not included and should any be found wandering in the streets they would be put into the pound.

The question of a cemetery came up for consideration and various sites were suggested. The matter was, however, deferred until the next meeting.

Bills sanctioned—W. F. Muehle, $2.50; Crown Lumber Co., $6.30; Wolfe & Pettman, $6.85; Vulcan Advocate, $2.00; Lindsay Hardware $54.05; Guy Walker, $1.50; H. Fearnley 60c.; J. H. Dickenson, $1.75.

Masonic Social

On Tuesday evening, November 18th, the Vulcan Masons held a very enjoyable social in the Masonic Hall, among the members of the Lodge.

For the most part, the evening was devoted to whist, and the prize winners were Miss Loftus and Mr. Martin.

Two songs were given by Mr. W. A. Howes, supper was served by the ladies, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent.

Return From Moose Hunt

Messrs. J. Freeman, Glace Dickenson, J. Steirs, W. Swartz and Tom Callahan returned on the 12th instant from a most successful hunting expedition, at a point 70 miles north and east of Fort Saskatchewan.

Speaking of the trip Mr. Freeman said the party had a most enjoyable time, the weather being ideal for hunting. 'It took us five days to get in and four to get out, which gave us four days for hunting and the rest of the time in getting our moose out to a wagon trail.'

Each one of the above named gentlemen secured a moose and they were all beautiful specimens. Upon the arrival of the five head at Blackie yesterday, the passengers on the C. P. R. were permitted to inspect the animals as they hung from a scaffold near the station.

Mr. Freeman's moose has probably the largest head seen in this district, the horns being very graceful. They have eighteen prongs on one side and seventeen on the other, while they measure at the widest part 58 inches, which is only two inches less than the largest moose horn ever seen in Northern Alberta. It is Mr. Freeman's intention to have the head mounted, and will then place it in one of the rooms of the Astoria Hotel.—Times.

R. W. Chitty Arrested

Considerable interest was evinced by people of High River and vicinity when a warrant was issued for the arrest of Robert W. Chitty, a farmer of the Mossleigh district. It appears that Mr. Chitty had sold certain cattle to Joseph Dixon, his neighbor, and a few days after the deal was put through, Mr. Dixon was informed by a collector of the International Harvester Co., that the cattle were already mortgaged to his company. Mr. Dixon consulted with the local justice of the peace, at Mossleigh, with the result that a warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. Chitty. The latter had left by that time for San Francisco. The police were communicated with, and when Mr. and Mrs. Chitty arrived at Fernie, Mr. Chitty was amazed to find that he was wanted by the police.

Constable McEwan, of the R.N.W.M.P., left Sunday for Fernie and arrived in Okotoks with the prisoner.

Mr. Trainor, of High River, appeared for the prisoner, on Tuesday, the hearing taking place at police barracks, Okotoks. The informant did not have sufficient evidence to warrant the conviction of the accused, with the result that Mr. Chitty was discharged a free man, and he and Mr. Chitty proceeded on their way to San Francisco, on Tuesday evening.—Times.

Sale of Work, Dec. 2nd

The members of the Ladies' Guild of the Presbyterian Church are holding a Sale of Work in the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, Dec. 2nd. A charge of twenty-five cents will be the entrance fee, and that will include a programme and the supper. Many articles, both pretty and practical, will be offered for sale, and they will be sold at prices to suit every pocket. The children have not been overlooked, for there will be a candy stall started with a most tempting assortment of all kinds, not forgetting the home-made variety, which carries a vision of home in every packet. Then there is to be a musical programme which is at present being arranged, and when finished is bound to be good; and that, with the supper, really reduces the term 'admission 25c' to a mere matter of form, doesn't it? for you don't pay to go in so much as you give your money in advance for the concert and supper. You are asked to bear in mind that the sale of work commences at eight o'clock in the evening.

The population of Swift Current was recently announced as 5,765 souls. Application will be made to have it incorporated as a city. The building permits this year totals over $1,000,000.

Domestic Change Only

Appropos of the new bi-lingual English-French postcards, it was explained at the Postoffice Department that the card is an innovation only so far as it affects domestic circulation in Canada. There has always been a two-cent postcard to send abroad and this has been in French as well as in English.

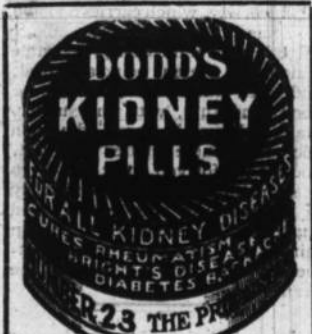

It is one of the rules of the postal union that all such cards must be in French as well as in the language of the country from which they are sent.

A Bridge of Ants

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ants nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from one leaf to another. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves in its mandibles. A number of such chains will cooperate in bringing two leaves together.

AN HISTORIC SPOT

Old Room at C.P.R. Offices in Montreal to be Reconstructed

The old room at the Canadian Pacific offices in Montreal, in which Sir William Van Horne, as, successively, manager and president, sat and pored over the map of Canada and drew his plans, is being knocked out of all remembrance by the scheme of reconstruction.

In this room Sir William used to receive his visitors, varied as to importance and distinction. The great ones of the earth have foregathered in the old room which has almost an historic significance. Men like Sir Henry Irving, Mathew Arnold, Lord Alverstone (a Sir Richard Webster), Lord Iveagh, Prince Arthur, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and many others belonging to the old world aristocracy and illuminati, have chatted in the old room where Sir William, getting down the maps before him, used to evolve his policies of extension and consolidation—when he had time to think of more general things than the paying of the wages—in the early days.

Some of the older officials, who remember the room so well, and the many times they have appeared before the president to discuss large things with him, as well as to enjoy the president's epigrams (when he had a moment to spare for them), feel a little sentimental regret that its glory has departed.

Gentle Reminder

It was midnight. The man had entered the house as quietly as possible. His shoes made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard some one moving in the bed as if about to get up, and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

If you don't take your boots off when you come into this house, it said, there's going to be trouble, and a whole lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to trudge over my carpets with your muddy boots on! Go downstairs and take them off this minute!

He went downstairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead he went straight out into the night again, and the pal who was waiting for him saw a tear glisten in his eye.

I can't rob that house, he said. It reminds me of home.

Why the Burglar laughed

One of the most interesting collections of burglars' tools is that possessed by Canon Horsley, rector of St. Peter's, Walworth, England, who years ago was chaplain at Clerkenwell and Pentonville. A short time ago he took to a bazaar a big assortment of skeleton keys, jemmies, crowbars, and a photograph of Charles Peace, once a member of his congregation. The canon is an authority on burglaries, and tells a good story of a burglar who used to carry pieces of doctored liver for silencing dogs. One night he entered a house, saw a dog's staring eyes in the hall, and once produced the liver. The animal did not move and on close inspection the burglar discovered that the dog was stuffed. Here is a joke! he thought and laughed so uproariously that the members of the household awoke and he was caught.

New York's Speedway

Drivers of fast horses in New York city have the costliest speedway in the world. It cost $3,000,000 and is reserved by the city for the special use of drivers of fast horses. It begins at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street and extends north to Dyckman street, a distance of four and one-quarter miles.

County Fairs

I remember, I remember. The fairs that used to be. No aviators circled. Above each pole and tree Nobody ever rubbered. Toward the orb of day Save when some young balloonist Let his toy one get away.

I remember, I remember The race track at the fair. No racing devil wagons. Raised any dust cloud there. No motor cycles, whizzing. Led racers to their fate Old Dobbin did his half mile In just three forty-eight.

I remember, I remember How simple were the shows—No moving picture experts. No dancers shy of clothes. One clown, one bag of popcorn—One lemonade and there—You have the joys in toto—Of that dear county fair.

Education

Education is ultimately tested by its power to develop efficiency, knowledge, wisdom and enthusiasm. It is important to distinguish between miscellaneous information and well organized knowledge. Not how much but what kind of knowledge does a man possess is the vital point. Facts and experience are valuable only when they are properly related and raised into general principles. Education today must deal with actual life, must give the student insight into nature, man and society. Studies must be kept in fruitful relation to the world of experience. Knowledge is no power until it is put to solving problems. Solving these is the true test of efficiency.

A very remarkable decision was given in a cricket match in Western Canada in the old cowboy days. The batsman's bat-handle had become unwound, and he had several times stopped to gather up the slack. But in making a big hit his bat flew out of his hands leaving only an end of the twine round his fingers, the stretched string catching the balls and dragging them off. Hit wicket, was exclaimed, but the umpire preferred the formula: Lassoed wicket, and gave him out at that amid great mirth.

A Forgotten Burns Poem

Dr. Samuel Johnson's letter to the Earl of Chesterfield, one of the classics of English literature, now has a companion piece in a recently discovered poem by Robert Burns, hitherto unpublished, says the New York World. The poem was found in the possession of Mrs. John Moffatt of St. Andrews, Scotland, and, as told in the preface by the poet, it was composed and presented 'o the nobleman addressed 'upon being called up from the servants' hall, where he had been sent to dine along with them, to add to the entertainment of his company. The poet adds: On presenting which he put on his hat, turned on his heel and retired.

There are thirty-one lines in the poem, the closing part of which is as follows:

Among our lordship's hopeful guests There must be here some sad mistake I would not play for such a stake Be a buffoon for drink and meat, At a poor earl's tax paid seat! No, die my heart, ere such a shame Descends on Robert Burns' name!

AN OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels.

Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine.

Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure."

A Suggestion

At the dinner table on board an ocean liner one man was much annoyed by the vulgar manner in which his next neighbor ate.

He tried to take no notice of the man, but after watching him pick a bone in an extremely primitive fashion he could not control his feelings any longer, and turning to the offender he said:

Don't you really think you would be more comfortable if you took that bone out on the mat?

No More Asthma. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy sounds the death knell of this trying trouble. It stops the awful choking and painful breathing. It guards against night attacks and gives renewed ability to sleep and rest the whole night long. Much is claimed for this remedy, but nothing but what can be demonstrated by a trial. If you suffer from asthma try it and convince yourself of its great value.

Even Britons Admit It

Not His Job

A seedy-looking man applied to the late Mr. d'Oyley Carte, in the days of his management at the Savoy, for a job. Mr. Carte was just then trying some candidate for the chorus, and as the man was very persistent, he turned to the pianist and asked him to play an accompaniment for him. With some hesitation the stranger raised his voice.

What do you mean by this tomfoolery? shouted Mr. d'Oyley Carte. You have the impudence to ask me for a job?

I ain't no singer, replied the man. I don't want to sing. I'm a stage carpenter and only sang to please you!

Any Man

A well-known university professor, says The Youth's Companion (Boston) who has been taking much interest in the woman's suffrage movement, was persuaded to carry a banner in a parade that was held in New York some months ago. His wife observed him marching with a dejected air and carrying his banner so that it hung limply on its stand, and later she reproved him for not making a better appearance.

Why didn't you march like somebody, and let people see your banner? she said.

My dear, meekly replied the professor, did you see what was on the banner? It read: Any man can vote, why can't I?

Extraordinary Kindness

Mrs. Blinks is an awfully kind hearted woman. There is hardly another like her in this town.

What charities is she most interested in?

I don't think she is interested in any charity, but she had a dressmaker in her house the other day, and when I asked her to give me the woman's address she did it without trying for a moment to convince me that it would be useless to try to engage her.

No, sir, answered the charwoman. No, sir, doesn't get here so early. Is there anything I can do for you?

Perhaps you can. I suppose you are not connected with the poetical department of the magazine? Ah, yes sir, was the quick reply. You are? And what do you do? I empty the wastepaper baskets, sir.

GRIPPED BY A LION

Livingstone's Fearful Ordeal and His Narrow Escape.

A BATTLE WITH A MANEATER.

The Wounded and Maddened Monster, In a Paroxysm of Dying Rage, Caught the Explorer in His Jaws and Shook Him as a Terrier Would a Rat.

David Livingstone, the famous African explorer and missionary, once had a singular encounter with a wounded lion that almost put an end to the explorer's remarkable career before it had fairly begun. But the story must be unfamiliar to many persons who have never read Dr. Livingstone's books. The adventure occurred while he was living among the Bakatlas, not far from the present town of Mafeking. This account is from his own narrative:

The people of Mabotsa were troubled by lions, which leaped into the cattle pens by night and destroyed their milk and draft animals. They even attacked the herds boldly by daylight, and although several expeditions against the wild beasts were planned the people had not the courage to carry them through successfully.

It is well known that if one in a troop of lions is killed the others leave that part of the country. I therefore went out with the people to help them destroy one of the marauders. We found the animals on a small hill covered with trees. The men formed round it in a circle and gradually closed up. Being below on the plain with a native schoolmaster named Mahaliwe, I saw one of the lions sitting on a piece of rock. Mahaliwe fired at him, and the ball hit the rock. The lion bit at the spot as a dog does at a stick or stone thrown at him, and then, leaping away, broke through the circle and escaped. The Bakatlas ought to have speared him in his attempt to get out, but they were afraid.

When the circle was reformed we saw two other lions in it, but dared not fire lest we should shoot some of the people. The beasts burst through the line, and as it was evident the men could not face their foes we turned back toward the village.

In going round the end of the hill I saw a lion sitting on a piece of rock, about thirty yards off, with a little bush in front of him. I took good aim at him through the bush and fired both barrels.

The men called out, "He is shot, he is shot!" Others cried, "Let us go to him!"

I saw the lion's tail erect in anger and said, "Stop a little till I load again!" I was in the act of ramming down the bullets when I heard a shout, and, looking half round, I saw the lion in the act of springing at me.

He caught me by the shoulder, and we both came to the ground together. Growing horribly, he shook me as a ferrier dog does a rat. The shock produced a stupor like that felt by a mouse in the grip of the cat. It caused a sort of dreaminess, in which there was no sense of pain or feeling of terror, although I was quite conscious of what was happening. This placidity is probably produced in all animals killed by the carnivora, and if so, it is a merciful provision of the Creator for lessening the pain of death.

As he had one paw on the back of my head, I turned round to relieve myself of the weight and saw his eyes directed to Mahaliwe, who was aiming at him from a distance of ten or fifteen yards. The gun missed fire in both barrels. The animal immediately left me to attack him and bit his thigh. Another man, whose life I had saved after he had been tossed by a buffalo, tried to spear the lion, upon which he turned from Mahaliwe, and seized this fresh foe by the shoulder.

At that moment the bullets the beast had received took effect, and he fell down dead. The whole was the work of a few moments and must have been his paroxysm of dying rage. In order to take out the charrn from him the Bakatlas on the following day made a huge bonfire over the carcass, which was declared to be the largest ever seen.

Besides crunching the bone into splinters, eleven of his teeth had penetrated the upper part of my arm. The bite of a lion resembles a gunshot wound. It is generally followed by a great deal of sloughing and discharge, and over afterward pains are felt periodically in the part. I had on a tannin jacket, which I believe wiped off the virus from the teeth that pierced the flesh, for my two companions in the affray have both suffered from the usual palsy, while I have escaped with only the inconvenience of a false joint in my limb.

Old China.

The beauty of old china is often destroyed by brown spots which appear on the surface. An effective way to remove these is to bury the dish in the earth, covering it completely. The darker spots require more time to remove them than the lighter ones. This method will not harm the most delicate china.—New York Telegram.

THE LOVELIGHT IN HIS EYES.

He Thought That Was What Made All the People Stare.

"You have read in novels how a great emotion will transform a man's countenance, how a poet's face in the hour of inspiration sets the sparrows glazing on the housetops. My own features are of the commonplace type—nobody thinks of regarding them twice—yet I, too, have had my experiences, declares a contributor to Punch.

"They occurred on the morning when I received a letter from Phyllis, which said briefly, 'Yes, I think so.' Not much in that, you may say, but when I tell you it was the delayed answer to a proposal of marriage you will understand. Shortly after reading it I stepped out into the street to walk to the office.

"What a walk that was! The light in my eyes seemed to brighten the very sun; the song in my heart was echoed from a hundred motorbuses. Never have the winds of May wooed so winningly a February morning.

"Every man I met turned his head as if loath to take his eyes from my irradiated countenance. Every girl seemed to take the keenest pleasure in my happiness and smiled at me prettily as if infected by its contagion. 'Tis well, I thought (in blank verse), 'that Phyllis now is pledged to me or, by my troth, these flattering glances shot from beauty's eyes might make my heart unfaithful.'

"It was only when I reached the office and looked in the glass that I discovered the large black smudge on the end of my nose."

COURAGE OF NAPOLEON.

The Way It Carried Him From Aspern-Essling to Wagram.

Professor J. Holland Rose in "The Personality of Napoleon" writes of Napoleon's courage. He says that his personality "never stood forth so grandly as after a defeat." The most serious blow in the middle part of his career was that dealt him by the Archduke Charles at Aspern-Essling, northeast of Vienna. The Austrians were nearly double him in strength. The bridges over the Danube had been broken down in his rear. His great marshal, Lannes, had been killed, and, in fact, he had suffered a terrible reverse. All his generals were for retreat, but he withstood them, and Professor Rose ranks the next six weeks "among the most glorious of his military career." He secured new troops, deceived his enemy by false movements and finally defeated him at Wagram.

But a decline came to such a prodigious man. He himself said at St. Helena that he had been spoiled by success. It was natural that the victor in fifty pitched battles and innumerable smaller engagements should come to believe himself omniscient and invincible. It was this hardening of the mind that betrayed him into the Russian campaign, that caused him to refuse all compromise in 1813 and 1814 and that led him to defeat by his inferiors, Wellington and Blucher, at Waterloo, just as Hannibal was finally beaten by his inferior, Scipio, at Zama.

Putting Trees to Bed.

An interesting method of protecting peach trees from frost during the winter has been practiced for several years at the agricultural experiment station at Canyon, Colo. Early in November the earth is removed from a circle—about four feet in diameter round each tree, and water is turned in to saturate the soil. When the ground has become soft the tree is worked back and forth to loosen the roots and is then pushed over on its side. The branches are brought together and fastened with a cord, and burlap covered with earth is put over them.

Thus the trees lie snug until spring, when the covering is gradually loosened and finally removed, and they are raised and propped up.—Rocky Mountain News.

But She Hadn't.

"What's the matter, old chap? You look as if you hadn't had a wink of sleep all night."

"I haven't. You see, my wife threatened never to speak to me again if I didn't come home last night before 10 o'clock, and I didn't."

"I see. You're finding out the loneliness of solitude because she kept her word, eh?"

"Not by a jugful. I wish she had."—Exchange.

YOUR MILLINERY.

In the Fall Hats Women Will Look Older.

In the majority of fall models women will look older. This is because the bonnet, mushroom and bell shapes have given way to the hat with an up-turned brim, and to be strictly in style the brim must turn at the back.

If you are young and fair to look on, by all means wear a chin band on your new fall hat. This can be of velvet ribbon, taffeta or moire or of tulle and malines. It can have a fastening by means of a hook and eye, or the streamers can be tied at one side, coquettishly, under one ear or just in front. The chin band will be noticeable on hats for afternoon and evening this season.

One "cap" is of velvet, with a puffed crown and a visor which comes down in front. At one side is a panache mounting to great height and giving a dashing effect that would look well with a military suit. On a black velvet hat for evening there is used chintilly lace for the brim and for the wired bow at the back that holds the turned up brim. The illustration shows an exceedingly stylish piece of millinery—a jaunty sailor of black velvet, with fancy quills. The upstanding medallion ruche worn with this chapeau will add ultra chicness to any costume.

TRAVELER'S LUNCH.

Home Fare Often Better Than Dining Car Meals.

To pack lunch for a traveler requires much more finesse and care than if you were preparing for a day's picnic. Traveling is apt to be tiresome, for long hours of riding, even in a comfortable twentieth century train, have many drawbacks, and if a lunch is to be enjoyed on the road the same must be the acme of daintiness. Many travelers prefer to carry several meals instead of patronizing the dining car service when going on a long journey, and if each meal is packed separately and offers enough variety there is no reason why the last should not be as enjoyable as the first. Have white, clean pasteboard boxes, wrap each in a white paper and mark neatly. Use the best grade of white paper napkins, dishes and waxed paper. A small fruit knife or butter spreader, aluminum fork and spoon and a collapsible cup can be carried in one's grip.

When using these recipes remember all measurements are level. Use a graduated half pint measuring cup and sift flour before measuring.

Pimento Cheese Sandwiches.

One soft cream cheese, one teaspoonful of cream, one canned red pimento, one teaspoonful of pimento oil; mash the cheese with the cream to a smooth paste, cut pimento into small bits, add that and the oil which will be found in the can, mix well and then spread on unsweetened crackers.

Boston Sandwiches.

One cupful of baked beans, two thin slices of bacon, one teaspoonful of ketchup, one teaspoonful of mustard sauce, steamed brown bread. Run the beans through a "fruit press," cut the bacon into tiny cubes and fry to a golden crispness; drain off the fat and add the cubes to the beans; add other ingredients and run to a smooth paste; spread between thin buttered slices of brown bread.

Marshmallow Fingers.

Split lady fingers and spread with marshmallow icing, put a little sprinkling of ground almonds between, press together and ice on both sides, placing a half blanched almond on each center.

Deviled Macaroni.

Boil, blanch, drain and chop four ounces of macaroni rather fine. Rub two tablespoonfuls of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour together, add one-half pint of milk and stir it till boiling. Press three hard boiled eggs through a sieve or chop them very fine, and add them to the thick sauce. Add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, a grating of nutmeg and one tablespoonful of onion juice. Now mix in the macaroni and a small quantity of cayenne. Put in individual shells, cover the top with breadcrumbs moistened with melted butter and run them into a quick oven to brown. When done make an indentation with the back of a spoon in the center of each, put in a teaspoonful of tomato ketchup or cold meat and serve at once.

BABY MIDSHIPMEN.

In the Old Days When Children Were Sent to War.

Among other improvements in the art of war as attained by the world in these later days is the abolition of the practice of sending children to sea; as was the case when the midshipmen of the old "oak walls" of England often were boys of less than fourteen years.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava in telling about the siege of Bomarsund, in the Crimean war, which he witnessed on the frigate Fenelope, related this story of one of these little fellows.

"What pleased me most during the whole business," he says, "was the gallant behavior of a little midshipman, a mere child, thirteen or fourteen years of age. About the time when the fire became pretty hot I happened to come across him, and, as he seemed to be as much out of a job as myself, I touched my cap and took the liberty of observing that it was a fine day, to which he politely replied that it was."

"Encouraged by his urbanity, I ventured to ask him how long he had been at sea, to which he answered, 'I have only left my mamma six weeks, but I ain't going to cry on her majesty's quarterdeck,' a remark which I think as worth recording as many a one made by more illustrious heroes. Soon after this, however, a man was killed close to him, and the little fellow fainted and was taken below."

OUR USELESS BUFFALOES.

They Have Passed Away Because They Were Economically Unfit.

As a typical species of American fauna the buffalo had his place in our history, but take him by and large he was a rather useless beast, with no adaptability for civilization. He served his purpose on the plains when men led a nomadic life there and existed on his hide. But as soon as the range land, over which the buffalo "roamed in countless thousands," became fit for settlement the buffalo was decidedly de trop.

Very little of him was fit to eat. He was worth a bullet when there was no other meat to be had, but a people accustomed to modern steaks and roasts would find him not overappetizing once the novelty wore off. In a word, the buffalo was economically unfit, and he went the way of the unfit.

Had he been conserved he might now be affording opportunity for big game hunters to enjoy themselves in moderation. They are really the only persons who have suffered by his disappearance. To preserve the buffalo as a specimen in our zoos is proper. He is a curiosity and has a historical value. But entirely too many tears have been shed over his destruction. One steer was still in worth a dozen bison.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Japanese "Movies."

Even the remotest towns in Japan have their moving picture shows, and in large cities they seem to be nearly as plentiful as on this side of the Pacific. In Yokohama there is a whole street of them, and, as the program of each is endless and each picture is announced in huge symbols on a separate variegated banner flying from a tall bamboo pole, the aspect of Theater street is startlingly unique. The pictures illustrating the sensational points of the programs above the entrances and at their sides have a certain quaintness about them, which is accentuated by the fact that they are all originals, not mere stereotyped advertisements printed in raw colors. The "getas" or wooden sandals of the spectators are deposited on a rack before the entrance to a moving picture show, for where other people take off their hats the Japanese leave their shoes.—Popular Mechanic.

Basketball.

Basketball was the invention of one man and was completed at a single sitting. In 1891, in the course of a lecture at the Young Men's Christian association in Springfield, Mass., the lecturer spoke of the mental processes of invention and used a game, with its limitations and necessities, as an illustration. James Naismith, who was a member of the class, worked out basketball that same night as an ideal game to meet the case. It was presented the next day in the lecture room and put in practice with the aid of the members of the gymnasium. From there it spread to other branches of the Young Men's Christian association and subsequently to athletic clubs and the general public.—New York Press.

An Optimist's Epitaph.

The Caribbeid invalid has ordinarily a surprisingly robust appearance. He looks strong. Scoffers say he has to be to live through the rigors of the cure. There is an apocryphal legend of an epitaph in a Caribbeid churchyard:

I hoped to be better.
Now I am! —Harper's.

In Spain the peasant works all day and dances half the night, yet rarely is his food varied from black bread, onion and watermelon.

PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

It is Usually Caused by Nervous or Digestive Troubles.

Palpitation is rarely if ever due to any disease or weakness of the heart. It is almost invariably the result of nervous or digestive trouble. The beat of the heart arises within itself. There are nerves in the muscles of the heart, and they regulate its beating, although the speed or rate of the beating is not of their choosing. If they were not held in check they would set a rate about double that which is actually maintained.

The heart is supplied from the brain with two pairs of regulating nerves. One pair, the cardio motor nerves, act only to spur up the heart to quicker action. They are usually inactive, waiting the occasion for applying the spur. The other pair, the cardio inhibitory nerves, are always in action. It has been said that the heart runs in a pair of tightly held reins, and the simile is true, for these nerves check the speed.

Fear, worry, disorder of the stomach or nervous system causes these cardio inhibitory nerves to relax; then the heart begins to race. There is nothing the matter with the heart itself, and no one need be alarmed about that organ just because it beats too rapidly. Its palpitation is due to a psychological or a physical cause, something that has caused the relaxation of the reins and allowed the cardio motor nerves to apply the spur.—New York World.

CHATTY WELSHMEN.

Most Talkative, It Is Said, of All the British Islanders.

Is the Welshman the most garrulous man in the British Isles? The result of an impartial test by a London newspaper has shown that for actual talkativeness the typical Welshman leads the list; next in order come Irishmen, then Scots, and last of all the Englishman.

Unobtrusively made in a number of well known London restaurants, clubs and public places, the tests invariably gave the same results. By means of a test watch the following table was compiled:

Welshmen—Very talkative, animated in manner and speaking at an average rate of 200 words a minute.

Irishmen—Also very talkative, but less animated in manner; average rate of speech, 160 words.

Scotchmen—Far less talkative and deliberate in manner; spoke at an average rate of 120 words.

Englishmen—Almost silent, rarely the first to speak; dogmatic and deliberate in manner, speaking 100 to 120 words a minute.

The comparative silence of the men, in striking contrast to the vivacious chatter of the women folk, was as usual noticeable. A curious detail was that dark men were always the bigger talkers.

Labadists of Holland.

There is a sect in Holland known as the Labadists, among whose members the use of mirrors is strictly prohibited. Their founder, Jean de Labadie, a seventeenth century Calvinist minister, attracted many followers, but after his death they dwindled down, and now they are found only in a few remote villages of Friesland. Traveling in Holland in 1893, Lecky lit upon a colony of Labadists. "Intermarrying mainly among themselves," he writes, "they have quite a distinct type—a singularly beautiful one, with their delicate lips and a curious air of refinement. They are fishermen—very prosperous—and their houses, with their china and silver ornaments and prints of the house of Orange and great Bibles with silver clasps and perfectly preternatural neatness, are very interesting to see."—London Chronicle.

Tale of a Lost Will.

A lost will found in a ceiling at Chatsworth reminds us of the curious case of Lord Hailes' will. He was a Scotch judge, and when he died in 1792, as no testamentary paper could be discovered, the heir-at-law was about to take possession of the estates to the exclusion of his daughter and only child. She sent some of her servants to look up the family mansion, which she had to give up, and from some window shutters dropped out upon the floor from behind a panel the missing will, which secured her all the family estates and property. Why do people take the trouble to make, sign wills properly attested and then conceal them? Can they enjoy a posthumous joke?—London Spectator.

Tidy to the Last.

In "Glimpses of the Past" Miss Elizabeth Wordsworth tells this story:

One stormy day a fishing smack was wrecked and fast sinking. When the skipper came on deck he found the mate busy swabbing.

"What's the use of that, Jack? Don't you see she's sinking?"

"Yes, master, I know it; but, for all that, I'd like the old gal to go down clean and tidy."

The Manifestation.

"Papa," said the young girl sweetly, "I feel it in my bones that you are going to buy me a new hat."

"Ah, do you?" chuckled papa. "In which bone do you feel it?"

"Well, I'm not sure, but I think it's in my wishbone."

In a Way.

"Are you acquainted with Mrs. Hidy, your fashionable neighbor?"

"Only in a roundabout way. Her cat boards at my house."—Kansas City Journal.

IS LINK WITH NELSON

AGED TORONTO WOMAN HAD UNCLE ON "VICTORY."

Mrs. John Campbell Is Niece of Gunner's Kate on Board Famous Flagship at Trafalgar and Can Well Remember His Stories of the Great Sea Fight—Rose High in His Profession.

She was just a gentle, kindly faced old woman who lay and smiled in the sunshine. "Here's a gentleman to see you," said her daughter, and a slim hand came groping out from beneath the bedspread, till it met the fingers of the stranger and enclosed them in a grasp, the strength of which was a surprise.

The younger woman stooped beside the bed. "He wants to speak to you about your uncle, who was at the battle of Trafalgar," she explained, and a flush of pride and pleasure came to the wrinkled cheeks of the old lady.

She is Mrs. John Campbell, aged eighty-two years, and lives with a married daughter at 15 Bishop street, Toronto, says a writer in The Toronto Telegram.

Her uncle, John McMurchy, of Mulreese, in the Isle of Kilmory, off the coast of Argyllshire, was a gunner's mate aboard the Victory at the battle of Trafalgar, where an English fleet of twenty-seven ships defeated the combined fleets of France and Spain, numbering thirty-three ships in all. Mrs. Campbell has been in this country for thirty-three years. She is a widow, who has been blind for nearly half a century. With increasing age slight deafness has come upon her, but her mind is still clear as to the manner of man her uncle was.

"A tall man and strong," she said when questioned regarding him. "Last time I saw him his face was clear and bright as a young man's should be. He fought the French for twenty-four years. Aye, twenty-four years," she mused. "Was 'pressed' when he was nineteen, taken prisoner at his first fight, and held in France for a year; but he made them pay for that—he made them pay for that."

"A great and a brave man he was. Gentlemen came from all over the country to speak to him of Nelson and the fight with the French." She was losing the preciseness of speech which marked her first words. "I couldn't tell ye all that was said for some of the men only spoke English, an' 'twas kin' o' hard on me those days, was English, for I first learned the Gaelic—an' I have it yet," she said proudly.

"But I was tellin' ye about my Uncle McMurchy, the gunner's mate that he was. Heard me like a very daughter, he did, for he had neither chick nor child of his ain. Off I have heard him tell o' that bluddy battle o' Trafalgar. He was gunner's mate on the Victory, an' it was his crew helped fire the first broadside. An' I've heard him tell o' the shot which felled Nelson, an' how the admiral raised himself up on his elbow an' continued giv' orders while the life's blood ebbed away."

An' I mind I'm tellin' the gentleman who came to see him, that Nelson truly said, 'Thank God, I ha' done my duty,' before he died, to say naethin' o' words to the effect that the enemy were beaten. "He helped carry Nelson below, an' then went back to the fight, where the bluid was bollin' in the men that served the guns that day, so that some men were crying, and the wicked among them were swearing terrible things against the enemy—an' they fought, an' fought, till they won the battle. For so my uncle told me an' others beside."

"Some brave thing my uncle did about the time of the battle of Trafalgar—I dinna ken just what 'twas now, for he was not the man to talk o' much of what things he had done—led the captain of the ship to say, 'McMurchy, ye can have whatever you like; name it, an' it will be given ye,' " she smiled. "An' what do you suppose he asked for? Why, nothing more or less than that half of his pension should be paid to his wife after his death. She was much younger than him, and she lived to get about thirty pounds a year from the Government, to say nothin' o' prize money, an' the like, which had made, my uncle quite a well-to-do man."

Her voice began to falter a little, but after a moment's pause she went on: "Oh, ay, I come o' goid stock. My uncle was as high rank as he could be when he left the service, an' all the officers had a guid word for him, for he was a gairn fighter an' a great an' willing worker." She paused again, then, "Why wouldn't he be?" she said. "All his folk were born beside the sea, or made their living on it, captains an' sailors, an' fishermen, an' a'. But I'll be biddin' you 'good-bye,' " she said suddenly. "I'm tired 'n' talkin', though it's done me a deal o' good to speak to someone concernin' my uncle who fought at Trafalgar, an' many other places in the wars with the French an' the Spanish."

The Toll of the Storm

During the past few days Canada and the United States have been gripped with the news coming in of the storm which overwhelmed the Great Lakes recently. The loss of life has been estimated at about 160, and the loss of property is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. Other discoveries of loss, both of lives and property, may be made as time goes on but it is difficult to say how the estimates will match the actual calamity.

Up to the present one hundred and ninety-five lives were lost on Lake Huron, forty-eight on Lake Superior, seven on Lake Michigan, and six on Lake Erie. Those are the approximate estimates.

In reading the accounts as they have come through day after day, it is difficult to realize the immense wave of sorrow which has passed over the neighborhood of the disaster. People from the east, and those whose lives have at one time been in touch with the sea, will have hearty sympathy with those homes which have been so suddenly bereaved. And yet we, who are so immune from danger of a like kind are apt to hear of these things and pass them by as purely impersonal happenings at first.

It is after the initial excitement of hearing the news that our minds become attuned to the nature of the calamity and begin to realize what a terrible loss has been sustained.

It is when the realization comes that sympathy flows out to the bereaved, and the West, in its comparative immunity from disasters of a like nature, is capable of extending to the East the sympathy of which men and women are capable.

British Plan is Desirable

U.S. Secretary of War, Garrison, favors a colonial form of government for the United States insular possessions similar to that which England has granted to her Overseas possessions. The secretary gave expression to these opinions while in discussion with some prominent American citizens.

He admitted that the opinions were his own, and that he had not taken the matter up with the president.

There seems to be some probability that during the next session the secretary of War will take the question up, recommending to the president the granting of citizenship to Porto Ricans; which would give them the right to make their own laws, not exclusive of Tariff laws.

The secretary of War believes that Porto Rico should have the same privileges and rights as those enjoyed by Canada.

First Ship Through Canal

The first deep draft vessel to pass through the Panama Canal from ocean to ocean will be one of the government Panama railroad steamers now running between New York and Colon, if the plan which secretary Garrison has in contemplation finally is adopted. The secretary's idea is to allow Col. Goethals all the time he requires to complete the canal and experiment with it before this initial trip is made. Then, having aboard President Wilson and some of the members of the cabinet, the congressional committees having jurisdiction over the canal and a few newspaper men, the Panama liner will pass through the waterway from Cristobal, on the Atlantic side, to Balboa, on the Pacific side.

On December 1st nominations for councillors for Vulcan will be received, and the election will follow early in the New Year.

This will be the second of its kind in connection with our town, and it is an occasion which will demand the careful attention of the townspeople.

In a young and growing town such as this the filling of the offices is no easy task, either to the electorate or for the councillors, and it is the duty of the former to weigh the matter carefully from an unbiased standpoint, keeping in view the welfare of the town. The men who are elected have the responsibility of spade work before them, and their energies have to be devoted to the task in an unsparing and unselfish manner.

As far as we are able to speak, for our establishment in the town only dates back a few months, it is fair to say that during the past twelve months the councillors have performed their duties in a manner highly creditable. The streets have undergone a vast improvement public attention has been drawn to many anomalies which have been rectified, protective measures against fire have been installed, and things generally have been straightened out to assume a business-like attitude. Owing to the financial stringency the village has been debarred from undertaking many improvements that would otherwise have been accomplished by now, and before the debentures could be sold more advantageously than they can be today, the present council have acted wisely in curtailing expenditure which would otherwise have meant loans disproportionate to the size of the town. It is regrettable that in some instances, such as that of the Pound ordinance, which the Council suspended for the benefit of those who had cows, advantage should have been taken of it, and other animals turned loose. But the council have been quick to remedy that, and animals other than cows found at large are liable to be put into the pound.

It is safe to say that the councillors who come out at the end of the year have done quite as well as circumstances would permit, and this fact ought not to be overlooked when nominations are handed in. The new council will have two very important matters to deal with on assuming office—the sale of debentures, and the acquiring of a site for the cemetery, and in a town such as this, there will be many other matters requiring full and mature consideration, and it is the duty of the electorate to nominate such men as are capable of handling the affairs of Vulcan in a businesslike way.

GREAT LAKES DISASTER FUND

Mayor Sinnot of Calgary, has been requested to act as treasurer of the Calgary fund of the appeal which is being made to the people of Canada on behalf of the families of those who lost their lives in the recent storm on the Great Lakes.

Mr. Henderson, president of the Dominion Marine Association has issued the following plea on behalf of the movement.

"The Lakes disaster fund of Canada.

To the spirit which makes for the brotherhood of man, the Dominion Marine Association has decided to appeal, in opening a public subscription list for the families of brave sailors lost in the recent hurricane which swept the Great Lakes.

Substantial contributions are already offered by the members of the association, and subscriptions from all sources will be welcomed. The mayor of Toronto will act as honorary treasurer, and Mr. H. H. Gildersleeve, manager of the western lines of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Co., whose offices are at the Yonge Street dock in Toronto, has been appointed general treasurer for the fund. Contributions should be sent to either of these gentlemen before December 1st, and all returns made by that time, in order that the administration of the fund may be made promptly. All subscriptions will be acknowledged promptly.

The owners of Canadian ships take this opportunity to express their deep sympathy with the bereaved relatives and their confidence that the contribution which they are making to the fund will be generously and heartily augmented by a sympathetic public.

The mayor of Calgary is being asked to co-operate in this appeal by acting as honorary treasurer in this (Calgary) locality."

FOR RELIEF FUND

When the Cabinet met at Ottawa on Monday, November 17th, it was decided to make a contribution to the amount of $25,000 for the relief of the families of the men who lost their lives during the terrific storm which swept over the Great Lakes. As soon as ever the necessary arrangements have been made for the division of the money, relief will be given.

This grant is the first which the government have been called upon to make since the Regina disaster.

The government steamer Lampton has been maintaining a steady patrol of Lake Huron coast in the vicinity of Goderich, and the government is making an effort to secure the use of a tug at Fort William to go to Manitou Island, as it is thought that the crew of the wrecked steamer Leafield may have found refuge there.

A NEW TRANSCONTINENTAL

When the coming session of Parliament meets at Ottawa, application will be made asking for the incorporation of a new transcontinental railway company. It will be known as the All-Red-Line railroad company, and the road is to be run from the Atlantic Coast at a point on the boundary between Labrador and Quebec. Its Pacific terminus will be Dean Inlet, King Island.

The line is to pass north of the 52nd circle of latitude, across the Nottaway River, westerly towards the head of Lake Winnipeg, intersecting the Hudson Bay railway at Cormorant Lake. From there it will run south of Lac la Biche to Athabasca Landing. It will proceed from there to Peace River Landing and over the mountains, following the Nechto Valley to Dean river and its terminus.

The company are also contemplating the construction of four branches, one from Martin's Falls to Winnipeg; one from Winnipeg to Moose Jaw; one from the Peace River valley to the Yukon, and the fourth from Quebec to the main line via the Peribonka River.

OIL LEASE COMPLICATIONS

It is the opinion of several Calgary oil men, who have given close attention to the local oil conditions lately, that there will be some legal complications regarding the oil leases in Southern Alberta. Up to the present, very few leases have been actually issued by the government, and two months or more may elapse before those who have recently filed on claims receive them. Nevertheless, leases have changed hands time after time, and for considerable sums of money. There is a possibility that for one reason or another the lease may fail to be issued, in which case the most likely event is that the purchaser will demand that his money be refunded. It is well known that the Dominion land regulations hold both mineral and natural gas and petroleum rights separately from the surface rights when issuing titles to land. Thus a farmer has no more right to the gas and petroleum rights than anyone else, and the situation is dependent on as to who files first for these particular rights, irrespective of surface rights.

The farmer and homesteader are protected by the government, as it is provided for in the title deed that anyone seeking oil, gas or minerals must first of all arrive at a satisfactory and equitable arrangement with the farmer or homesteader before the machinery can be moved on to the land. If the question of the amount of the payment cannot be satisfactorily agreed upon by the two parties, then the government intervenes and arbitrates in order that both the farmer and the oil prospector may have a square deal without one 'besting' the other.

NEW MUNICIPALITIES

The organization of rural municipalities is progressing rapidly since the amendment to the Rural Municipalities Act, providing that local improvement districts may be organized into rural municipalities on a petition of the electors instead of a vote of the people being essential, came into being. It is only four weeks ago that the amendments to this Act were assented to, but seven new rural municipalities have been formed and other petitions have been forwarded to the department of municipalities.

Among the new municipalities already formed are Rosebud No. 280, near Carstairs; Waterloo 281, west of Rosebud; Westerlake No. 311, west of Didsbury; Lake View, north of Viking. Others not yet named are numbered—452, south of Vermillion; 482 North of Vermillion; and 334 at Coronation. Tollerton, the main divisional point west of Edmonton, on the C.N.R., is arranging for organization as a village municipality.

WHEAT AND FLOUR EXPORTS

Wheat and flour exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending November 13th, as reported by telegraph to Bradstreet's, aggregate 7,599,134 bushels, against 7,837,876 bushels for the previous week, and 5,471,894 bushels for the corresponding week last year. Exports for the nineteen weeks ending November 13, are 113,146,442 bushels as against 83,056,682 bushels for the corresponding period last year. Corn exports for the week ending November 13th, are 17,899 bushels as against 10,507 bushels for the previous week, and 24,534 bushels for the corresponding week of 1912. For the 19 weeks ending November 13th, the figures are 987,444 bushels as against 1,370,088 for the corresponding period of 1912.

PROTECT BRITONS IN MEXICO

The cruisers are of the same type, having a displacement of 98,000 tons each, and they each carry an armament of fourteen 6 pounders, eight 12 pounders, and three 3 pounder guns.

QUEENSTOWN

The box social which was to be given on November 14th, by two ladies of the district was a decided success, and all present voted the affair a most enjoyable one. The receipts amounted to the handsome figure of $63.75, which will be handed over to the Wilard School for the purpose of varnishing and repairs. The evening was brought to a close with a dance, and the general impression was that for a successful evening, the ladies were better organizers than the gentlemen.

Grain hauling from Queenstown to the shipping point is engaging the attention of farmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. House were the proud possessor of a further member of the family, when a baby boy arrived on November 11th.

LOMA.

The ideal weather, and abundance of cars make it an ideal time for moving grain. Many cars have been loaded from this district, and more are being loaded.

The money situation is loosening up, and farmers are generally feeling pretty good. This is noticeable in the improvements under way, as well as those contemplated. Mr. Henry Ernst is erecting a modern eight room house. The same will be furnished in up-to-date style.

Mr. Sep Washburn is preparing to build a large cow barn.

Mitchell Bros. are planning the modelling of their building. Altogether the Loma district is in a very thrifty condition.

On Saturday the 15th inst., a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Spanke. Mother and babe are doing nicely.

Mr. Archie McBride is sending the week-end, presumably in Calgary. But we think, farther up.

The Rev. Fraser has come to take charge of the Presbyterian Mission field here. We trust his labors will not be in vain.

MARQUIS

The annual meeting of the electors of Marquis Municipality was held in Lake McGregor School House on November 17th for the purpose of discussing in general the affairs of the municipality. Mr. Francis Baden was elected chairman of the meeting. Reeve Bond gave the auditors interim report, showing especially the amount of money spent in road work during the year in each township. The full report will be printed and a copy sent to each ratepayer at the end of the year.

The central topic for discussion was the Debenture. By law which is being submitted to a vote of the electors on December 8th. General approval was given to the idea of borrowing money on debentures to fix the roads. Even those who were opposed to the by-law submitted in July, voiced their change of opinion and expressed themselves as being in favor of the by-law at present submitted. Objection was taken by a few to the amount of money to be borrowed, stating that $20,000 is too much to borrow at one time. Councillor Sims replied to these, that it was the duty of the electors to nominate and elect men of sane judgment and in whom they could put implicit confidence, that if $20,000 is spent judiciously it will be a wise move to borrow it, but if it is to be spent foolishly, then better not borrow any money at all.

According to the By-law the money is to be paid back in twenty equal annual instalments, the annual payment including interest at 6 per cent, with a part of the principal, on $20,000 would be about $1,700 a year; this will make a debenture tax of about one mill on present assessment.

The work done in the destruction of noxious weeds was discussed in general. Hearty approval was expressed of the work done by the weed inspectors; even Threshers Norton and Forsyth commending the idea of compelling the threshers to observe the Noxious Weeds' Act, but thinking it was an unnecessary expense to engage an inspector to follow the threshers continually.

A mistake was made in arranging the date for the nomination meeting, and also for the election. The nomination meeting will be held on Monday, December 1st, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., in Lake McGregor school. The election will be held on Monday, December 8th.

While drilling for water near Claresholm, a farmer was unlucky enough to strike a flow of gas at a depth of 300 feet.

Alberta and Mixed Farming

Below we reproduce a copy of the Seventh Annual Report in the Province of Alberta written by Mr. Klugman N. Robin for the Associated Mortgage Investors of Rochester, N.Y. In compiling this report Mr. Robin personally visited every district, and made a very careful study of conditions, and thus the report becomes rather interesting. Messrs. Roberts, Hunt & Watt of High River, have the Alberta agency for this company, and they have loaned a great deal to farmers.

Following is the Report:—
"The pleasantest task I have had this year of general financial difficulties and business perplexity is to report to our clients and others, who may be interested, what I have observed during the past two months, spent in the Province of Alberta, Western Canada.

Several days in each of the larger towns of the Province, and more than a thousand miles of inspection trips by motor car and rail, have left a comprehensive impression of general conditions, of which the following are outstanding and especially significant.

1. Alberta has this year harvested the best crop in her history—largest in quantity and best in quality.

2. Alberta has in a year made a really remarkable advance in mixed farming, dairying, and breeding and feeding live stock.

3. The elimination of speculation by action of the banks and other financial institutions in restricting credits to the most legitimate purposes and the most responsible persons. All classes of the population have been forced to produce wealth, rather than to try to get it by the short cut methods of trading for an advance in price.

4. Immigration of a desirable class of settlers continues in even greater volume than any previous year.

5. Improvement in facilities for transportation and communication. The Canadian Pacific alone has recently appropriated $100,000,000 for improvements.

6. Excellent prices for all products, especially livestock.

7. Important progress made in a year in establishing various agencies to improve the character of the farming experiment and demonstration farms, agricultural schools and institutes, etc.

8. I was especially impressed this year with the advantages of the Alberta climate blessed as I was with two months of almost perfect weather, and no discomfort from heat, while all the continent to the south of Alberta was suffering from intense heat; and large areas lost heavily from drought.

CROPS

These points may be commented on more in detail for those who are interested, as follows:

The better parts of Alberta, at their best, cannot be surpassed on the Continent. This statement is made with knowledge of what the best agricultural states are doing.

Most of my field trips covered the district south of Calgary on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the border, excluding the south easterly and easterly sections of this district which we do not approve for loaning purposes. The chief field is, roughly speaking, 100 miles square (10,000 square miles, over 6,000,000 acres), and wherever I went, crops of 30-40 bushels of wheat, 60-100 bushels of oats, 15-20 bushels of flax, were the rule and not the exception. Indifferent farming accounted for the exceptions.

It has been a rich year for the wheat grower, and he has made up for his partial losses in 1910 and 1911. Those years have taught their lesson, however, and the coarse grains for feeding purposes—oats and barley—predominated more than ever in the province that has always led all Canada in these grains. One large farmer, noted for his careful methods and large yields, seeded oats this year entirely, and is arranging for the marketing of 350,000 bushels. Some of his fields averaged 100 bushels per acre.

There has been a largely increased area of flax grown, and a larger area of timothy, rye and alfalfa.

All this is an evidence of the increase of mixed farming—of the practice of growing grain and tame grasses to feed to cattle, hogs, horses and sheep, and of raising this stock on the farm and feeding it there, instead of shipping the grain. The beneficial results of is many-fold. Grain fed to stock yields a higher price than when shipped, realizing by careful computation $1.25 to $1.50 a bushel.

School Increases

An increase of school attendants to the amount of 9,384, has taken place in the schools of the province of Alberta, from 1911 to 1912. In 1911 there were 61,660 scholars enrolled at the various schools, and 71,044 was the figure for 1912.

The increase in teachers for the same period has been 403, the number in 1911 being 2,651, as against 3,054 for 1912.

School districts which were organized amount to 245, the total number to the end of 1912 being 2,029, while the figures for 1911 were 1784.

The population of rural schools in the province is 36,599, and 34,645 in urban schools.

The urban school population shows a faster increase than that of the rural school, although the rural school population has been in excess of the urban school population since 1909.

CHAPTER IV
Little Miss Jane

What did you do with that bag? demanded the man with the gun, and I felt his knee on my chest.

What bag? I enquired feebly.

Don't be a fool, he persisted. If I don't get that bag within five minutes I'll fill you as full of holes as a cheese.

I haven't seen any bag, said stupidly. What sort of a bag? I heard my own voice, drunk from the shock. Paper bag, I said.

You've hidden it in the house, he said, bringing the revolver a little closer with every word.

Go in and look, I responded. I do not know anything about a bag, but if you will give me your word there was nothing in it belonging to this house I will take you in, and let you look for it.

The next moment he had lowered the revolver and clutched my arm.

Who in the devil's name are you? he asked wildly.

I think the thing dawned on us both at the same moment.

My name is Knox, I said coolly—John Knox.

Knox! He snatched the candle from me and, holding it up, searched my face. Then good God—where is my travelling bag? I am Harry Wardrop, and I have been robbed, Mr. Knox. I was trying to get in the house without waking the family, and when I came here to the front door, where I had left my valise, it was gone. I thought you were the thief when you came out, and—well, we've lost all this time. Somebody has followed me and robbed me!

What was in the bag? I asked.

Valuable papers, he said shortly. You are certain you left it here?

Where you are standing.

Something glinted beside the step, and I discovered a small brown leather travelling bag, apparently quite new.

Here it is, I said, not so gracious as I might have been. I had suffered considerably for that travelling bag. The sight of it restored Wardrop's poise.

By Jove, I am glad to see it, he said. I can't explain, but tremendous things were depending on that bag, Mr. Knox. I don't know how to apologize to you for I must have nearly brained you.

You did, I said grimly, and gave him the bag. The moment he took it I knew there was something wrong. He hurried into the house and lighted the library lamp. Then he opened the travelling bag with shaking fingers. It was empty!

It's a trick, he said furiously. You've hidden it somewhere. This is not my bag. You've substituted one just like it!

Don't be a fool, I retorted. How could I substitute an empty satchel for yours when up to fifteen minutes ago I had never seen you or your grip?

A SOARING SKYSCRAPER

Six Stories Without Foundation is Unique Departure in Building

In New York one of the most unique departures in building construction ever attempted is in progress. The twelve-story building of the Consolidated Gas Company now being erected at Fifteenth street and Irving place has six stories that are practically soaring in midair without foundation.

The Engineering News explains the phenomenon as follows:

As the old building is not strong enough to bear this additional weight it was decided to suspend six of the seven additional stories from heavy girders, the girders themselves being supported on steel columns 250 feet high, reaching to the ground, alongside the old building. The seventh additional story rests on the girders.

The largest girders are sixty-three feet long, eight feet deep, and weigh forty tons each. They are at an elevation of 250 feet above Fifteenth street. The eight girders, having a total weight of 300 tons were conveyed to the foot of East Fifteenth street on one lighter. They were carried singly from there to the job on trucks of special construction each drawn by thirty-four horses. The truck wheels were of steel and had eighteen-inch treads. The girder were unloaded from the trucks and placed upon the street by means of a large derrick, installed on the nineteenth floor of the new building. The girders were lifted one at a time, by this same derrick and placed in their respective positions. The actual hoisting and placing of the girder required twelve hours, distributed over Aug. 1 to 3; the last girder, weighing forty tons, being lifted and placed in twelve minutes.

The uplift at the outer end of the derrick sills was taken by steel beams and one and one-fourth-inch steel cables, the latter carried down five stories and there attached to the columns at their intersection with the floor girders. In addition, nine adjacent panels of the building structure were diagonally braced in both directions with steel cables, to resist all tendency toward racking the building horizontally. No vibration was detected when the girders were set in place.

To Develop Zinc Mines

After listening to statements by members of the Board of Trade and mining men of the district, in which the necessity for the continuation by the Dominion Government of experiments in the treatment of complex zinc ores and for the appointment of a royal commission to make a thorough investigation into the requirements of the mining industry was urged, Hon. Louis Goudeau, Secretary of State and Minister of Mines, has despatched Dr. Eugene Haanel, director of the Federal Department of Mines, instructions to authorize E. Didolph to proceed at once with the work at the zinc plant in Fairview. Expenses of the work will be covered by $30,000, which remains of the grant of $50,000 originally made for the purpose of experiments in methods of treating zinc ores.

Stomach, Nerves and Thicker Restored by Grape-Nuts Food

The number of persons whose ailments were such that no other food could be retained at all, is large and reports are on the increase.

"For 12 years I suffered from dyspepsia, finding no food that did not distress me," writes a Wis. lady. "I was reduced from 145 to 90 lbs., gradually growing weaker until I could eat only a short while at a time, and became unable to speak aloud."

"Three years ago I was attracted by an article on Grape-Nuts and decided to try it."

"My stomach was so weak I could not take cream, but used Grape-Nuts with milk and lime water. It helped me from the first, building up my system in a manner most astonishing to my friends who had thought my recovery impossible."

"Soon I was able to take Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast and lunch at night, with an egg and Grape-Nuts for dinner."

"I am now able to eat fruit, meat and early all vegetables for dinner, but fondly continue Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper."

"At the time of beginning Grape-Nuts I could scarcely speak a sentence without changing words around or 'falting' crooked in some way but I have become so strengthened that I no longer have that trouble."

Making His Point

The correspondence was brief but to the point. The letter she received was as follows:

Dear Madam—We take pleasure in shipping to your address the fine Persian rug, for which we shall be glad to receive your check. If you do not desire the rug, please return it. Very truly yours, etc.

I never heard of such impertinence! cried the lady. The ideal! And she replied as follows:

Dear Sirs—I have ordered no rug from your store, and I see no reason why I should go to the expense of returning a thing I don't want and which was sent to me unsolicited. Respectfully yours, etc.

In due time she received this communication:

Dear Madam—I am sending for that unsolicited rug. Will you return the favor and send for the unsolicited charity entertainment tickets? Twenty-four lie on my desk.

ZAM-BUK

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., Writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

COOKING A HEDGEHOG

Bake it in Clay into a Solid Mass and Carve it With an Axe

When a Maine Indian has the choice of a hedgehog, a skunk, a woodchuck and a muskrat for dinner he will select the first named invariably and take the skunk as second choice, leaving the woodchuck, which is the only one of the lot a Maine white man will taste, to the last. Unlike the skunk and the woodchuck, which are lean in the fall, or the muskrat, which is never fat and which has a strong flavor in spite of rabbling, the hedgehog is always in edible condition and has meat that is as tender and white as that of a spring chicken.

The method of cooking a hedgehog is so simple that a novice can learn in one short lesson. When the epicure is permitted to make a choice he should shun the large old males, which at times weigh thirty or forty pounds. The preparation consists in removing the viscera, washing out the interior and filling the cavity with slices of fat pork, peeled raw potatoes, sprigs of asparagus and wild celery from the garden.

Then, without removing the quills or skinning, the body is plastered thickly with wet clay from the nearest bank. The muddy, bulky mass is thrust into live coals and covered with blazing fagots to be roasted for two hours.

On removal from the coals, the clay is found to have been baked into a hard solid mass, which must be broken open with an ax or a heavy stone, whereupon the skin and quills of the animal cling to the clay wrapping and fall away, leaving the clean white meat ready to be eaten.

A Statesman

At a meeting of a woman suffrage organization in Kansas City, Kan., it was suggested that the members talk to their servants and other women workers with a view to forming an estimate as to the strength of suffrage sentiment in that particular locality. One member, who has employed the same washerwoman for the last six years, reported that she put the question to this worthy lady:

Are you in favor of votes for women? the suffrage woman asked.

I don't pay attention to politics, the washerwoman replied. I leave all that to my husband.

Well, how does your husband stand on woman suffrage?

He don't stand at all. He believes in women staying at home and minding their own business.

How many families do you wash for?

Six.

And what does your husband do, Mary?

He ain't doing anything right now—unless he found something this morning.

Miller's Worm Powders work so effectively that no traces of worms can be found. The pests are macerated in the stomach and pass away in the stools without being perceptible. They make an entire and clean sweep of the intestines, and nothing in the shape of a worm can find lodgement there when these powders are in operation. Nothing could be more thorough or desirable than their action.

No man is Stronger Than his Stomach

LET the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his strength will soon fail. One's stamina—forcefulness and strength of mind or muscle—depend upon the blood, and the blood in turn, requires a healthy stomach, for the stomach is the laboratory where the food is digested and such elements are taken up—or assimilated—which make blood. In consequence all the organs of the body, such as heart, lungs, liver and kidneys, as well as the nervous system, feel the bad effect if the stomach is deranged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

helps the stomach to digest food properly, starts the liver into new activity, removes the poisons from the blood, and the various elements of the blood, instead of being ill nourished, the refreshing influence of this aspect of active medicine, which has been severely known for over 40 years. Fish in the Sea of Galilee

Bible students may be interested to know that there is still good fishing in the sea of Galilee. Dr. Ernest W. Gurney Masterman, who has practiced medicine in Galilee, made a special study of fishes found there and in a recent book says that he found forty-three varieties, twice as many as can be found in the British Isles. The fishermen are taxed a fifth of the value of the fish caught, the revenue going partly to the sultan and partly to a pasha in Damascus.

And what interested you chiefly down there?

Oh, certainly the frequent visits of an old chap who came and sat down in my cell, put on his eyeglasses, and asked me the most idiotic questions. Ever thing I replied he wrote down in a little notebook. Of course the poor fellow was mad.

The visitor, was M. Paul Bourget.

GENIUS OF A PAINTER

Da Vinci's Prayer and Triumph of Art While still a Pupil!

It is told of Leonardo da Vinci that while still a pupil, before his genius burst into brilliancy, he received a special inspiration in this way:

His old and famous master because of his growing infirmities of age felt obliged to give up his own work and one day bade L. Vinci finish for him a picture which he had begun. The young man had such reverence for his master's skill that he shrank from the task. The old artist, however, would not accept any excuse, but persisted in his command, saying simply: Do your best.

Da Vinci at last tremblingly seized the brush and, kneeling before the easel, said the following prayer: It is for the sake of my beloved master that I implore skill and power for this undertaking. As he proceeded his hand grew steady, his eye awoke with slumbering genius. He forgot himself and was filled with enthusiasm for his work.

When the painting was finished the old master was carried into the studio to pass judgment on the result. His eyes rested on a triumph of art. Throwing his arms around the young artist, he exclaimed: My son, I paint no more.

DOCTORS CONDEMN OILY LINIMENTS

Public are Warned Against Strong Smelling, Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids and Amonia

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed and they were found to contain an enormous percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as amonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation, and causes endless trouble.

When the doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, an important physician stated that he considered a strong, penetrating pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white amonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

A FAMOUS WOMAN DETECTIVE

Mrs. Goodwin of the New York Police a Real Sherlock Holmes

In the Woman's Home-Companion appears the following account of Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, the famous detective in New York city in connection with the police department:

Here is a real 8h-clock Holmes who has been instrumental in the capture of hundreds of lawbreakers without smoking a single pipeful of tobacco. She is Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, police matron, recently promoted to detective of the first grade on the New York city force with a salary of $2,350 a year in recognition of her services in procuring the capture of the taxi cab bandits, whose reckless exploits had startled the city. Mrs. Goodwin is a widow, forty-seven years old, the mother of three children, and her home life is as peacefully busy as that of any village housekeeper. Since the death of her husband, a roundsman on the police force, fifteen years ago, until her recent promotion Mrs. Goodwin served as a police matron incidentally exercising her gifts as a detective in quietly gathering evidence against hundreds of dangerous frauds and quacks.

Her elder son is a detective of the first grade, her sister is a department store detective, and her daughter also has already manifested ability in detective work. When the taxi cab bandits after robbing two bank messengers of $25,000, had seemingly baffled the police Mrs. Goodwin was enlisted in the case. By impersonating the sister of the landlady of a boarding house frequented by friends of the robbers she was enabled gradually to pick up information that was invaluable to the authorities in running down the criminals. It was this case that won her promotion and official standing as a detective, y through her fifteen years of service she had already done an enormous amount of even more valuable though less sensational work in obtaining evidence against over 500 dangerous swindlers—astrologers, palmists, fortune tellers and crystal gazers, psychics, trance mediums, Hindu magicians, quack doctors and surgeons and others that in the large cities prey upon foolish people, almost un molested because of the difficulty of proving that they actually violate the law.

Patriotism is Remembered

It was the breaking of a teapot in the American invasion of one hundred years ago that gave Ellerbeck avenue, Toronto, its name.

John Playter, grandfather of John L. and Albert Playter of North Riverdale, lived at the time of the American occupation of York, on the east bank of the River Don. After the evacuation of York by the British troops the American commander learned that John Playter had the custody of some valuable documents and a large quantity of silver money. Playter buried the treasure left in his charge.

An officer and some men were detailed by the commander to go to the Playter home and take charge of these valuables. They found Mrs. Playter engaged in preparing the supper. The men demanded to know the hiding-place of the treasures. Mrs. Playter remained silent and persistently refused to divulge the spot where they were buried.

In a moment of rage the officer whipped out his sword and flourished it, knocking over a tea-pot.

He left when he saw that the woman was unmoved.

When a street was cut close to the cottage a couple of years ago the little incident of the tea-pot was remembered and the road was named Ellerbeck, after the maiden name of the woman whose firmness had defeated a detail of soldiers one hundred years before.

No, sir! the boss answered, striking himself upon the chest. No, sir! I am a freeborn American citizen, and I will sell my support to no one.

But, said the millionaire blandly as he drew out his check book and fountain pen—but if you won't sell me your support, perhaps you will rent it to me for the term of this campaign?

Now you are talking, said the boss, in a mollified tone.

The Oil for the Athlete.—In rubbing down, the athlete can find nothing finer than Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It renders the muscles and sinews pliable, takes the soreness out of them and strengthens them for strains that may be put upon them. It stands pre-eminent for this purpose, and athletes who for years have been using it can testify to its value as a lubricant.

Southern Hospitality

I had been driving all day in a remote part of southern Georgia and at nightfall stopped at a cabin occupied by one man. He was very ridial and asked me to spend the night with him. When we sat down to supper I was somewhat disturbed to observe that the meal consisted of a single large dish of potatoes. Without apology the man, with a wave of his hand toward the dish, said in a loud, hearty voice: Stranger, take one.

He paused a moment and continued in a still louder tone: Stranger, take two!

Another pause, and then even louder and more earnestly: Stranger, take mighty near all of them.

All the by-products of the farm yields a return, whereas formerly they were burned or otherwise wasted. The fertility of the soil is more readily conserved. In years when grain is injured by frost or rain, for milling purposes, it loses none of its value for feeding.

The great advantage of mixed farming over exclusive grain raising is fully recognized, and the farmers are going into it as rapidly as they can secure funds to purchase stock.

A few statistics prove this: Although hog raising is a comparatively new branch of agriculture in Alberta, the output in 1912 was 500,000 head, and the shipments this year are at the rate of 1,000,000 per annum. The value of these is greater than that of the entire wheat crop of 1912. No figures are at hand relating to the increase in beef cattle and milch cows, but it is significant that the packing houses are doubling their capacity, and that whereas in 1903 the creameries of Saskatchewan in Alberta (Saskatchewan is included in the report, but is of almost negligible importance) produced 4,000,000 pounds, and fell so far short of supplying the demand that 20,000,000 pounds were imported.

Sheep raising in Alberta is by no means as extensive as it could profitably be, and is confined almost wholly to the extreme southern part of the province, but the wool clip increased from 900,000 pounds in 1912 to 1,300,000 pounds in 1913.

The manager of one of the banks in Nanton, a typical small town in the district where grain raising has been adhered to almost exclusively—reports that three years ago he made a canvass of his customers to see how much live stock they owned. They had a few cows and horses, but no hogs. He repeated the canvass this year, and found 20,000 hogs among his own customers alone. This is fairly indicative of the rapidity of the progress Alberta is making in establishing her farming operations on a mixed farming foundation. Her increasing prosperity on that basis is beyond doubt, and no agricultural district, not even the richest "corn belt" states, can be made to yield the intelligent farmer a better profit. I make this statement after careful consideration and inquiry, and it is on a basis of mixed farming that Iowa and Illinois farmers have justified land values of $150 to $200 an acre in comparison with which the $20 average land values in Alberta and our $5-$7 average loans seem reasonable indeed.

IMMIGRATION

This year shows an increase of 20% over last year, when the total was 402,433, of which Alberta got 48,073. The quality of this immigration is shown by the fact that out of a total immigration since 1900 of over 2,500,000, nearly 2,000,000 have been English speaking. As stated above, Canada is now adding to her population nearly one-twelfth of her present population every year—an unprecedented situation. The United States did not begin to get an annual immigration of 400,000 until her population was 40,000,000.

In Alberta the growth of population manifests itself in the gradual supplanting of the homestead farmer, who is often a wanderer and a poor developer, by the better class of permanent settlers. Accompanying this is a steady improvement in facilities of telephones, good bridges, postal facilities, and marked increase in railway facilities.

BETTER MARKETS

for grain and live stock, and better buying facilities are another natural result. Grain commands a better price in Alberta this year than in the Pacific Northwest of the United States, and live stock is admitted by all to be highly profitable. Stockmen commonly figure a profit of 25% on feeding cattle for market, and one of our borrowers made that on sheep last year. Nevertheless, hogs remain the best and quickest money-makers. Horses are still profitable, although off in price this year.

Three new Provincial demonstration farms and agricultural schools, and five Canadian Pacific demonstration farms have this year been added to the agencies making for better farming methods in Alberta. This is indicative of the constant and intelligent effort the railways and government are making to help build up a prosperous and contented agricultural community.

CONCLUSION.

I came away from Alberta this year more than ever convinced that our choice of that field for farm loans seven years ago was a wise one.

Alberta has never before been on so sound a foundation as at present, and investments in her established businesses and resources were never safer. I would rather loan on farms in Alberta this year than in any previous year. We can command twice as great security as last year and confine our loans to the best type of borrowers.

The inability of the great foreign mortgage companies and of the trust companies of Canada to command funds at the moment affords the greatest opportunity for safe and profitable investment in Alberta that the province has ever offered.

The First Alberta Wool

The Calgary Herald has lately published an interesting account of the Alberta wool and the markets for it.

That there is a splendid opportunity for sheep rearing in this country cannot be doubted, and in time there is bound to be an extensive interest in this branch of farming. Says the Herald:

"That there is an excellent market for wool, not only in Canada itself, but in the British Isles, is more than borne out by a shipment of wool from sheep raised in Alberta by a Calgary firm, to London, England, just recently. The firm has it ranch near Crowfoot, and at the present time is the owner of 12,000 sheep. Very recently the firm shipped 43 bales of wool to Du Croz, Doxat & Co., of London, England, and report that the experiment was an entire success. They not only obtained a very good price for the consignment but undoubtedly opened an avenue for trade which promises to lead to big things. This is the first occasion as far as can be ascertained, of wool being shipped to England from this province, and marks an epoch which is interesting as showing the possibilities of the industry. It certainly points to the fact that the climate of Alberta is suitable to the production of wool, and as climate plays a very important part in the life of the sheep ranch, this should encourage others to follow in the footsteps of this Calgary firm. Below is given a few extracts from 'The Wool Record,' a paper issued at Bradford, Yorkshire, England, bearing on this particular shipment, and distinctly indicating that such consignment was eminently satisfactory from the manufacturers' point of view.

At the recent series of London sales, Messrs. Du Croz, Doxat & Co. sold 43 bales of Canadian scoured wool, which met with very keen competition. Shipping wool from Canada to London almost looks like carrying coals to Newcastle, but London is undoubtedly a very good centre for the disposal of all surplus Canadian raw material, and when got up and handled in the same thorough and business-like way as this small consignment, we can guarantee a good market for every bale shipped. We had the privilege of inspecting the wool now in question, and it does credit, both to the grower and the gentleman who prepared it for market.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. Dalgety & Co., Limited, we are able to say that the wool was grown in Alberta, having been sorted and scoured by a man who has had many years' experience in New Zealand in classing and scouring wool. We understand that the foundation of a flock which produced the clip was laid by sheep from Montana in the United States and this is plain to be seen by any man having practical knowledge of Western Territory wool, the whole parcel showing very good quality. As already said, the wool was well up well classed and baled in a highly creditable way in new packs specially imported from New Zealand. We believe that this is the first shipment of wool from the province of Alberta, and hope it is the beginning of a good trade. In mentioning the sale of Canadian wools, some reference should be made to the fact that for many years slipped wools have been offered from British Columbia, which always receive a hearty reception. As a rule, the work is well done, but it is capable of improvement. There is nothing like presenting slipped wools attractively, and so ensuring the attention of all buyers. We see no reason why a very important business cannot be developed between this country and Canada, and while no doubt the Canadian manufacturers will consume the bulk of the raw material grown, London is a good market to dispose of any that can be exported.

In regard to the terminal interior elevator which the federal government has decided to erect at Calgary, it is probable that work will not be commenced until the spring, or early summer of 1914. Up to the present, the site for the elevator has not been decided upon.
